CONTENTS

Editorial
Andrea Townsend

Articles
Aristotelian action research: its value for studying character education in schools
Wouter Sandoroe

Experiencing action evaluation's cyclic process: partnering conflict, reflection, and action
Andrea C. Burrous and Shelly Sheats Harkness

Student-teachers' emotional needs and dichotomous problem-solving: non-cognitive root causes of teaching and learning problems
Eisabeth Sisau

Reflection in action: using inquiry groups to explore critical digital literacy with pre-service teachers
Sarah Lohes Watulak

A new model of collaborative action research; theorising from inter-professional practice development
Rachel Lofthouse, Jo Flanagan and Bibiana Wiegley

The benefits and challenges of enterprise education: results from an action research project in the third grade in Finnish basic education
Janne Elo

English language teachers becoming more efficacious through research engagement at their Turkish university
Mark Wyatt and Kenan Dihilitay

Developing an 'ethics for neuroscientists' course: between emancipation, practicality, and postmodernity in educational action research
Gerald Walther

Reflections on ethical dilemmas in working with so-called 'vulnerable' and 'hard-to-reach' groups: experiences from the Foodways and Futures project
Karolina Gomber, Flora Douglas, Karen McArdle and Sandra Carlile

A programme for future audit professionals: using action research to nurture student engagement
Karen Van Peursem, R. Helen Samijeh and Nirmala Nash

Human rights education and the research process: action research as a tool for reflection and change
Celma Tavares

Re-signifying participatory action research (PAR) in higher education: what does 'P' stand for in PAR?
Dori Santos

Book Review

Dedication

List of Reviewers